

Reuben Sandwich Makes the Meal

By VICKI PELLERITO
Senior Home Economist,
Southern California Gas Co.

An informal patio atmosphere tempts any family chef, notably the one who likes to entertain without effort. He knows that outdoor cooking is fun, easy and economical when it's done with a gas-fired grill. Last minute preparations are a cinch, especially if the menu features a delicious Reuben sandwich.

After the chef-of-the-day takes a few seconds of time to turn on the gas flame he can relax. He need not be involved with messy charcoal and starter fluid, nor with waiting and watching for coals to get just right.

In about 10 minutes the ceramic briquettes are ready for any cooking job. Whether it's to be a "hot fire" for broiling steaks, or a "slow fire" for grilling Reuben sandwiches, the flame can be adjusted for the cooking heat needed.

THE PERMANENT ceramic "coals" are self-cleaning. After the grilling is done merely let the same magic blue flame automatically do the cleaning job in just minutes. You don't even touch the coals—just leave them "as is," ready for the next use. No need to remember to replace anything! Isn't this an ideal way to wind up an informal cookout?

Gas-fired grills come in many sizes and styles, both portable and built-in models. Accessories are available, including rotisseries, spice racks, side trays for more working space, hoods and special barbecue tools.

If you aren't already a proud and happy owner of a gas grill, why not go browsing in the display area at your nearby gas company office? Here you can see and learn more about this truly fabulous modern gas appliance.

IF YOU need advice in making a selection, contact the gas company sales department. If you have questions about cooking on gas-fired grills your gas company home economist is ready and happy to help you.
